ABOUT ME

At the moment I'm at the outset of my front-end career. I'm a self-taught developer and have more than one year of experience in front-end development. During this time I've learnt to create beautiful and user-friendly websites. Although I don't have much experience, I have great enthusiasm and strong motivation, which is no less important for professional growth in any field. I have a clear understanding of how great IT industry is and I believe it will be more powerful in the future. So I'm ready for efficient work with like-minded people.
